This project is designed to foster greater personal and community pride and respect through the knowledge of our shared history and experiences. Writing and art events are planned to engage students of all ages as well as adults. Greater cultural awareness is explored through a variety of art projects, a poster contest and events. The project is planned to culminate in February with a community event to coincide with Black History month. It is intended to bring a wide range of groups, organizations, industries and interests together for a better awareness and appreciation of the South Dade Communities. Date and venue to be determined.

Want to get involved?

Share your family history - contribute photos or stories of pioneers in South Dade communities, help organize events, contribute art, speak at event, tell story,

More information will be posted on both the Goulds & Chugach websites as things progress
